Kansas Hispanic Education & Development Foundation Adds New Board Members

Wichita, Kan. - The Kansas Hispanic Education & Development Foundation (KHEDF) is pleased to announce that three business leaders have been appointed to the nonprofit's board of directors.

"We are so pleased at the Foundation to welcome these business leaders to our board of directors," said Yolanda Camarena., president of the Board. "The depth and breadth of their personal and professional experience will bring much to the table as we work to provide education and leadership opportunities for Hispanic students in Kansas."

The new board members are John Buckley, Military Relations Manager, Koch Industries, Inc.; Sylvia Orozco-Do, MD, physician, Hair by Robotics; and Veronica Johnston, owner, Johnston's Clothiers.

"Joining 10 other business and community leaders who serve on the board, the new members bring unique leadership skills and commitment to the collective impact work of KHEDF," said Ms. Camarena. "Their passion for improving outcomes for Hispanic students is fundamental to the mission of the Foundation."
